The Opinion and Sentence of a General Court-Martial, held at the Royal Hospital at Chelsea, on the 6th, and continued till the 8th of November, 1798, for the Trial of Captain JOHN FLOKY HOWARD, of the Royal Regiment of Horse Guards.

The Court-Martial having duly weighed and considered the whole matter before them, is of opinion, that Captain John Flory Howard, of the Royal Regiment of Horse-Guards, is not guilty of the first article of charge, viz. "Abetting him, "self from quarters without leave," and doth therefore acquit him.

With respect to the second article of charge: "Having on the 14th Day of "October, 1798, behaved to Major Corbet, his Commanding Officer, in a disrespectful, contemptuous, and insolent manner," the Court is opinion, that Captain Howard is guilty.

With regard to the third article, viz. "Having, on the same day, upon Major Corbet's reprehending to him the impropriety of his conduct, behaved to him, the said Major Corbet, in a most disrespectful, contemptuous, and insolent manner, in the presence and hearing of the officers and men," the Court is of opinion, that Captain Howard is guilty of having behaved to Major Corbet, his Commanding Officer, by words and gestures, in a most disrespectful, contemptuous, and insolent manner, in the presence and hearing of Lieutenant and Adjutant Law, and of Cornet Cherry, but not in the presence and hearing of the other officers or men of the regiment; and doth therefore, taking the whole of the circumstances into consideration, adjudge, that Captain John Flory Howard, of the Royal Regiment of Horse Guards, be publicly reprimanded at the head of the said Regiment; and that he be suspended from rank and pay for the space of twelve calendar months.

His Majesty having been graciously pleased to accept the offer made by General Jarry, (who was for some years at the head of the Ecole Militaire, at Berlin), to take on himself the superintendence of a similar establishment in this country, the Commander in Chief has been pleased to direct, that particulars relative to the proposed plan should be communicated to all Colonels and Commanding Officers of Regiments, to the end, that they may recommend for his Royal Highness's approbation, such officers as are desirous of profiting by General Jarry's instructions, and who are ready strictly to comply with the rules and regulations which will be framed by his Royal Highness's direction, for their conduct.

General Jarry will, on the 10th of March, be established at High Wycombe, and be ready to receive such pupils as have obtained his Royal Highness's approbation, and leave of absence from their regiments for that purpose. The number will be limited to thirty, each of whom, on his admission, must pay into the hands of Mess. Cox and Greenwood, treasurers for the establishment, the sum of twenty pounds; and be prepared to provide himself with such books and instruments, as General Jarry may think necessary; and as much of his instruction will be given actually in the field, it is very desirable that each officer should be provided with a horse, for which forage will be allowed: General Jarry speaks very little English, therefore his lectures will be given in the French language.

As a previous knowledge of the first rudiments of the profession is indispensably necessary to the study of its higher branches, of which General Jarry proposes to treat exclusively, it is essential that every officer, who is a candidate for admission, should be thoroughly grounded in the discipline and manœuvres of the particular service to which he belongs; that he should understand the first principles of geometry, to which, if he unites the advantage of having been already employed on actual service, there is every reason to believe that from General Jarry's Instructions he will be enabled to make a rapid progress in the attainment of military knowledge.

General Jarry will make frequent reports to the Commander in Chief, of the conduct and assiduity of his pupils, and the progress they make in their studies; and as any deviation from discipline, and from the subordination due to General Jarry, and the officer to be appointed a his assistant, which are absolutely necessary to the success of this plan, cannot fail to incur His Majesty's displeasure, it is earnestly recommended, that no officers should become candidates for admission, but such as are determined to yield the most exact obedience to the rules and regulations of the establishment.

REGULATIONS regarding the DRESS of STAFF OFFICERS.

The dress of the Adjutant-General, the Quarter-Master-General, and Barrack-

Master-General, to be the same as the frock uniform of Lieutenant-Generals, in silver.

Deputy Adjutant-General, Deputy Quarter-Master-General, and Deputy Barrack-Master-General, the same as the frock uniform of Major-Generals, in silver.

Any of the above Staff-Officers, being General-Officers, are permitted to wear, in silver, the button appropriated to officers of that rank, instead of the raised staff button, which is commonly in use.

The Adjutant and Quarter-Master-General of the forces, the Barrack-Master-General in England, and their respective deputies, as also the Aides-de-Camp of his Majesty, and his Royal Highness the Commander in Chief, are to be distinguished exclusively, by wearing two epaulettes.

All other Adjutants-General, Quarter-Masters-General, and Barrack-Masters-General, with their deputies, wear one epaulette, on the left shoulder.

Aides-de-Camp to General Officers of Cavalry, to wear one epaulette, on the left shoulder; those attached to General Officers of Infantry, one epaulette, on the right shoulder.

The uniform to be used in future, by Assistant Adjutants-General, Assistant Quarter-Master-General, and by Majors of Brigade, is to be in silver, the same as the uniform prescribed for Aides-de-Camp; but the two former officers, viz. the Assistant Adjutants-General and the Assistant Quarter-Master-General, are to be distinguished, by wearing two epaulettes.

Majors of Brigade, attached to Brigades of Cavalry, to wear one epaulette, on the left shoulder; those attached to Brigades of Infantry, one epaulette on the right shoulder. The buttons used by Assistant Adjutants-General, Assistant Quarter-Masters-General, Aides-de-Camp (with the exception of his Majesty's) and Majors of Brigade, to be plain. These uniforms and Directions are, by his Majesty's command, appropriated exclusively to the officers above specified.

His Majesty is pleased to permit Generals, and the Staff-Officers above-mentioned, to appear in the field in plain uniforms; but they are at all times to wear the distinguishing epaulette or epaulettes, buttons, and facings, as above prescribed; and their dress is, in every other particular, to be most pointedly exact and uniform.

THE LIGHT HORSE DRILL.

Designed for the Use of the Privates and Officers of the Volunteer Corps of Great-Britain.

THIS Work is illustrated with Copper-plates; and so contrived, that the Place of any Man in the Ranks may be found, at a single Glance of the Eye, in all the Variety of the Evolutions.

"The late general arming of the people has given rise to several useful military publications, to which the work before us forms a valuable addition. The instructions, as well as the plates, are the most clear and minute; and, in course, the best for young soldiers that we have seen. One or two inadvertencies occur, which we shall point out.—These are trifling defects; but in pointing them out, we have at once done our duty, and shewn how small the faults are that can be found by us in this useful work. We shall be glad to see the Second Part."

Wide Monthly Rev. Dec. 1795.

Corrected copies of the first part are now published, and the Purchasers of the early Copies (not marked "corrected,") may receive gratis the corrected sheet and plates by applying to the Bookseller whom they were bought.

The Second Part, which concludes this Work, is in the Hands of the Engravers, and will soon be published.
